WHAT

- By participating in an online survey that helps Western University provide the best programs and services for Aboriginal students' on-campus.

The term ‘Aboriginal’ refers to anyone of First Nations, Métis, or Inuit (FNMI) descent who self-identifies as Aboriginal.

- No proof of ancestry is required to self-identify.

- The process is completely voluntary and confidential.

- Indigenous Services oversees the data collection, storage and reporting in strict confidence and in accordance with privacy legislation.

HOW: 3-EASY STEPS

1. Go to indigenous.uwo.ca/selfid.
2. Check under the personal information section on the homepage at the top of the left hand corner.
3. It takes less than 2 minutes to complete.

Please note, the registration procedure is an ongoing process that can be changed at any time.

WHY

- Help Indigenous Services gain a greater understanding of Aboriginal students on-campus and be in a better position to enhance programs and services.

- Connect with the Aboriginal community on-campus by being included in communications.

- Be part of a collective and growing Aboriginal student body on campus and help effect positive changes for future generations.

If you have any questions, please contact Indigenous Services at is.staff@uwo.ca or 519-661-4095.

If postcard is undeliverable, please return to: Western University, Indigenous Services, Room 2100, Western Student Services Building, London, Ontario, CANADA, N6A 3K7.
Stand proud and help strengthen Aboriginal presence at Western!

Aboriginal Student Self-Identification Process

1. Choose to Self-Identify
2. Complete the online survey
3. Visit Indigenous Services (optional)